

Ken Westermann spent 20 years working in the film and television industry. He began his career working for a video production company in Stuttgart Germany, then joined the industry in Los Angeles California and finally settled into a position as a television broadcast engineer in Seattle Washington. In 2009 Ken joined the Seattle Science Foundation to bring his broadcasting experience to the medical arena.